There is not, nor has there ever been, a binding contractual arrangement, much less a security agreement, between the alleged secured party ("Thompson") and the purported debtor (the "dealership"). Thompson materially altered a motor vehicle purchase contract by striking out material terms and returning the document as a purported "conditional acceptance", which the dealership rejected. Among the material terms altered by Thompson was changing the term of payment from cash to payment by virtue of a fraudulent "certificate of deposit" that was not issued by any bank or financial institution but by Thompson himself and purportedly supported by "ONE BILLION (1,000,000,000) in lawful money of the united States of America, GOLD and SILVER". Thompson's initial filing, UCC-1, #202285220810, on February 2, 2022 was fraudulent as was the amendment he filed, UCC-3 #202285249370, on February 3, 2022, in which he claims a security interest in $2,670,770 of motor vehicles in connection with his scheme. Thompson has not paid the dealership anything or advanced any funds to the dealership and there is no outstanding obligation on the dealership's part. There is no contract or other basis upon which Thompson may base the filing of a UCC-1 financing statement.
